

AIAA Greater Huntsville Section December Lecture with Ellis Brazeal

The AIAA Greater Huntsville Section hosted a December professional lecture with Ellis Brazeal on two current topics in space law: orbital debris and the Artemis accords. Ellis is a GHS member and spoke to our section virtually on Tuesday, December 13th. A recording of the talk is available here.

About our speaker: Ellis Brazeal is a partner in Jones Walker LLP's Litigation Practice Group. He has more than 30 years of experience in commercial litigation, including all levels of state, federal, and bankruptcy courts. He represents and advises financial institutions and other entities regarding corporate restructuring, and handles construction, surety, and government contract litigation. He is recognized for his work by legal publications, and he regularly lectures on bankruptcy, contract litigation, and ethics. Ellis also lectures on space-related matters.

Ellis serves as an adjunct professor at The University of Alabama, where he teaches a course in Space Law, along with a Senior Seminar course, in the College of Engineering. He also teaches Space Law at The University of Alabama Law School. In addition to focusing on various international treaties, the Space Law course deals with government contracting and other aspects of international law.

Ellis serves as Chair for the Industrial Advisory Board for the Aerospace and Engineering Mechanics Department at the University of Alabama, which is comprised of business leaders from numerous aerospace and aviation companies. Ellis is also involved in the ABA Forum on Aviation and Space Law.
